Munich: Experience the unmistakeable sound of super sports cars, go hunting for drivers' autographs, take a look behind the scenes at the teams' garages – come and see the ADAC GT Masters for yourself. Advance ticket sales for the 2017 season are now under way, and ticket prices remain the same. The Super Sports Car League will begin its eleventh season on the weekend of 28th/30th April in the Motorsport Arena Oschersleben.

Tickets are now available online at www.adac.de/gt-masters for the season opener in the Motorsport Arena Oschersleben, the races at the Red Bull Ring in Austria, Zandvoort in the Netherlands, the Nürburgring, Sachsenring and for the finale in Hockenheim. As usual, the 'print @home' service will be available for convenient instant printing of tickets. Ticket sales for the Motorsport Festival Lausitzring to be run in conjunction with the DTM will start shortly.

Ticket prices remain unchanged for 2017. Day tickets for Saturday or Sunday cost from just 20 euros upwards. Weekend tickets (Friday to Sunday) start at 30 euros. Access to the open paddock, the pit walk, the autograph hour and guided tours of the paddock are all included. Children under 12 accompanied by a paying adult get free admission. At the race track, day tickets cost 25 euros and the weekend ticket 35 euros.

Ticket discount at Essen Motor Show

Visitors to this year's Essen Motor Show have the chance to benefit from a special offer. All those calling at the ADAC's stand in Hall 3 (A180) can buy weekend ticket vouchers which cost 25 euros instead of the normal pre-race price of 30 euros and can be used at all race tracks except the Lausitzring.

SPORT1 will again broadcast all ADAC GT Masters races live and in full on free-to-air TV next year. TV coverage will be supplemented by comprehensive online reporting.
