ADAC GT Masters steps up a gear with digital coverage for final round

- Live stream from races on Facebook
- Live onboard streams from cockpits of main title contenders

Hockenheim: The ADAC GT Masters is stepping up a gear on Facebook for the final weekend in Hockenheim (30th September - 2nd October). The two races and qualifying for the Super Sports Car League will be made available live and in full length in the online stream on Saturday and Sunday at www.facebook.com/adac.gt.masters which is the Facebook page of the ADAC GT Masters. Highlight clips with the most spectacular scenes from the races and news from the paddock will complete the Facebook live coverage of the ADAC GT Masters grand finale at Hockenheim.

On Friday evening, there will be a warm-up for this weekend's ADAC GT Masters events when the main title contenders will be live to chat on Facebook from the pit lane. The three ADAC Formula 4 races and the two final ADAC TCR Germany races will also be broadcast live on the Facebook pages of both series.

Another highlight is in store for fans of the ADAC GT Masters on the official adac.de/gt-masters website, as fans will be able to experience the title fight online as 'passengers' via live onboard streams from the Audi of championship leader Christopher Mies & Connor de Phillippi and from the Corvette of their rivals, Daniel Keilwitz & Jules Gounon.

On TV, SPORT1 will broadcast the ADAC GT Masters races live from Hockenheim as usual on free-to-air TV on Saturday and Sunday at 1:00 pm.

Fans who want to experience the ADAC GT Masters Hockenheim season finale live at the track can get tickets in advance from just 20 euros, including paddock access at: www.adac.de/motorsport.
