Early-booking bonus: Great discounts on the 2025 Central European Rally

- Stable prices: Rally Pass offers the ultimate rally experience for € 99
- Perfect Christmas present for the family, with 20% discount on the Rally Pass
- Digital tickets also available now in the online shop

Munich. Advance tickets for the Central European Rally, from 16th to 19th October 2025, are on sale now and make the perfect Christmas present for rally fans. Plus, anyone booking by 31st December 2024 saves 20% on the Rally Pass. The online ticket shop for the WRC rally in Germany, Austria and the Czech Republic also offers some new features to accommodate the desires of the many people visiting the rally. For example, from 2025 it will again be possible to purchase tickets in digital form – either to print at home or as digital tickets to store in the wallet on mobile devices. The price remains stable for rally fans: at just € 99, the Rally Pass includes the full motorsport entertainment package from Thursday to Sunday, while the limited “1 of 1000” edition is also available again and includes a high-quality ticket and fascinating bonuses for € 125. An overview of all ticket categories can be found in the ticket shop on the official homepage at centraleuropeanrally.eu.

With its asphalt stages in the heart of Europe, the WRC rally has become a real crowd-puller over the past two years. In order to meet the desires of the many thousands of fans, the organisers are continuing to optimise the ticket system in 2025. As well as the digital variants, it goes without say that guests can also still receive their tickets through the post. Tickets will start to be shipped in CW 34 and will include a lanyard, rally plate sticker and spectator map at no extra charge. The only additional cost is for postage.

Special tickets for special guests

The “1 of 1000” version of the Rally Pass has proven to be very popular. This limited special edition allows the holder to register for a guided tour, offering a glimpse behind the scenes of the event. Ticket holders will also go into a draw, with three lucky winners receiving a rapid ride in the Rally Taxi at the Shakedown on the Thursday. The VIP Ticket offers even more comfort, with additional services like on-stage hospitality, VIP parking places and a VIP guide. The ticket will be available in the ticket shop from spring 2025. And: the rally will be more compact in 2025 – shorter liaison stages between the special stages will make the event even more attractive for competitors and fans alike. Another important change sees the Service Park return from Karpfham to the exhibition centre in Passau in autumn 2025, bringing it much closer to the routes in the Freyung-Grafenau and Passau districts, as well as the Bohemian Forest and Upper Austria.

Day Passes and parking can be booked in advance

To make a trip to the rally comfortable and easy for all guests, Day Passes for Thursday to Sunday can also be purchased in advance. Here too, it is possible to choose between the digital version and a printed ticket, which is sent by post and comes with the spectator map. Day Passes cost between € 25 (Thursday and Sunday) and € 45 (Friday and Saturday). Parking tickets (€ 22 plus postage), which are valid for the entire event, can also be booked in advance. These are only sent by post. One important new feature is the abolition of the deadline for advance ticket sales. The ticket shop will remain online during the rally, allowing visitors to purchase a digital ticket at short notice. Alternatively, tickets will also be available at the entrance to spectator points on the individual special stages, and at the Shakedown. Other points of sale and offers are in the pipeline and will be announced in good time ahead of the rally.
