DTM visits renowned circuits in Germany and Europe in 2025

- DTM to stage races in three countries next year
- Calendar includes eight rounds, focussing on the core German market

Munich. The DTM has released its calendar for the 2025 season, and is returning to tried-and-tested venues. Drivers, teams and fans can look forward to 16 races spread over eight events. Next year's first two DTM victories are up for grabs from 25th to 27th April at Motorsport Arena Oschersleben. In keeping with tradition, the season finale will take place at the Hockenheimring Baden-Württemberg (3rd to 5th October). As well as six race weekends in Germany, the DTM also travels to the Netherlands and Austria. Tickets for the 2025 DTM will be available from 20th October 2024 at dtm.com.

After the opening round of the 2025 season in Oschersleben, the DTM stars head to the Dekra Lausitzring (23rd to 25th May). The first foreign outing of the year awaits from 6th to 8th June at Circuit Zandvoort on the North Sea coast of the Netherlands. After that, the DTM will transform into the fastest city traffic in Germany: the Norisring (4th to 6th July) in Nuremberg is the only street circuit in Germany and one of the highlights on the calendar. The Nürburgring (8th to 10th August) marks the start of the second half of the season, in which the remaining events come every two or three weeks. Next up is another iconic German circuit with the Sachsenring (22nd to 24th August), before the Austrian mountain scenery provides the backdrop to the DTM at the Red Bull Ring from 12th to 14th September. Fans can then look forward to the showdown of the 2025 season in Hockenheim (3rd to 5th October). Next year's finale will take place 14 days earlier than it has in the past two seasons.

"The fans' enthusiasm for the DTM is high, which shows that we are on the right track when it comes to the calendar. Over the past few months, we have carefully scrutinised exciting venues for the DTM. However, as all the events in Germany have experienced a significant increase in popularity among visitors, we will stick with the tried-and-tested venues for the 2025 season," says ADAC Motorsport Director Thomas Voss.

In the 2024 season, the final round with the title decision in Hockenheim is still to come. From October 18th to 20th, 2024, Mirko Bortolotti (Lamborghini), Kelvin van der Linde (Audi) and Maro Engel (Mercedes-AMG) will compete in a three-way battle for the title in the DTM's anniversary season. Tickets for the finale are available from 39 euros at dtm.com.
