On sale now: DTM tickets for the Norisring

- Free admission for under 16s
- All ticket holders benefit from free travel, thanks to the VGN ticket

Munich. This coming July, the streets of Nuremberg will once again be transformed into a rapid street circuit, as the DTM visits the Norisring for round four of the 2025 season (4th to 6th July). Tickets for the city spectacle are available online now at dtm.com. ADAC members enjoy a ten percent discount at the Norisring and the other seven DTM race weekends. Plus, travel from the greater Nuremberg area is free for all visitors using public transport - the DTM tickets also serve as tickets for the local transport network (Verkehrsverbund Großraum Nürnberg).

Drivers and fans love the unique flair of the Norisring, which is also known as the "Franconian Monaco". Three long straights and two hairpins await the DTM stars between the walls and crash barriers lining the streets of Nuremberg. At just 2.162 kilometres, the Norisring is the shortest circuit on the calendar. This means spectators around the iconic racetrack on the banks of the Dutzendteich lake get to see the DTM cars more often than at any other circuit. Fans can experience the DTM from the famous stone grandstands, which offer a perfect view of the start/finish straight, and the pit lane for as little as € 74, as ticket prices have remained the same for 2025. Admission to the Norisring, including the stone grandstands, is free for under 16s when accompanied by an adult.

The DTM will again deliver an intimate motorsport experience in 2025. All tickets include entry to the paddock. Fans can get up close to the powerful cars and their favourite drivers during autograph sessions and pit walks. The race weekend at the Norisring promises to be a real festival of motorsport: it has already been confirmed that ADAC GT4 Germany, the Prototype Cup Germany and the Porsche Sixt Carrera Cup Deutschland will feature as support series for the DTM in Nuremberg.
